ORNITHOGALUM AUREUM

Golden Chinchinchee of South Africa

The attractive color and very long lasting quality of this bulb flower are probably its most outstanding merits. Aureum

Golden Chinchinchee of South Africa

Illustrated on . . . Front Cover

The Golden Chinchinchee is a remarkable flower; as a cut-flower it will keep in water for a month, and as a pot-plant will bloom for three months. When these amazing characteristics are more widely known, it will become a universal conservatory subject. This attractive apricot-orange flower has risen from practical South African obscurity to first rank amongst greenhouse bulbs.

Gardeners who sceptically gave this WONDER PLANT a trial were enthused and surprised at the results attained. It has measured up to all that has been claimed for it.

Makes an ideal vase decoration when combined with Statice. Blooms at the same time as the delightfully fragrant Leucocoryne (see back cover).

Grow in a temperature of 55 degrees and treat the same as Freesias. May be had in flower from Christmas on.

Large Bulbs doz., $3.00; 100, $24.00 First Size doz., $2.75; 100, $22.00

Thyrsoides

Of the same habit of blooming except the flower head which is pyramid shaped. Straw color changing to pure white.

Monster Bulbs (1½") doz., $1.00; 100, $8.00 First Size (1") doz., $.75; 100, $5.50
Large Bulbs (1¼") doz., $.85; 100, $6.50

Ranunculus

Produce beautiful Camellia-like flowers of unusually attractive colors; excellent cut-flower.

Indoors: Easily grown if excess heat and moisture are avoided. When potted, don't water until the plant appears, then sparingly. Grow in a cold house.

Outdoors: Plant in shady place in Fall or Spring, latter preferable, in a bed containing large proportion of sand for good drainage. For Winter protection cover lightly with salt hay; avoid peat moss or leaves which produce dampness.

Lilies

Hardy Garden

The Hardy Easter Lily

Philippinense Formosanum

will bloom outdoors . . . and . . . in fact: is hardier than the Regale, has more graceful foliage, sturdier stem and is a heavier stem rooter. The trumpets are longer and narrower, giving a decidedly more graceful appearance; color: pure white, outside suffused reddish brown. It is the most valuable Lily introduction commercially since the appearance of Regale. Under glass (in pots) the flowers come whiter on the outside. The writer has photographs of plants 5 to 7 ft. tall carrying 15 to 25 flowers per stalk. (Excerpts from "Seasonable Suggestions" in the Florists' Review, Dec. 13, 1934)

There are two distinct types: Summer flowering: Bloom in July, not over 2 ft. tall; Autumn flowering: Bloom from September to October. 4 ft. or more tall. Delivery: Nov. to May.

"The House Famous for Lawn Grass Seed"

Leucocoryne

Glory of the Sun

● Illustrated in Color on . . . Back Cover

● Bloom from 6 to 12 weeks. ● Beaucoup fragrance.

A delightfully fragrant cut-flower or pot-plant that is distinguished for its unusual long keeping qualities. It sends up in succession two to three spikes, each of which flowers for two to four weeks. Thus it produces an endless bloom for six weeks to three months. To the unfamiliar, this may appear exaggerated. On the contrary. Gardeners who sceptically gave this bulb a trial were satisfied that results sustained its claims.

The stems are 18 inches long and wiry; the flowers are azure-blue, with white centre and yellow stamens, the petals being wavy (the color plate on back cover speaks for itself).

So enrapturing was its fragrance, that at recent flower shows crowds were attracted wherever exhibited.

Anyone can grow Leucocoryne who can grow Freesias successfully, as the culture is identical. Plant 4 bulbs in a 4 or 5 inch pot.

Begonias

Tuberous Rooted

Illustrated at right

The Begonias at the right speak for themselves, except for the size, for which lack of space does not permit full expression. The Doubles measure up to four inches across and the Singles six inches. The engravings for these reproductions were created from blooms supplied by our California grower, and therefore represent exact likeness.

The superiority of this strain is an established fact. It has conquered through competition many celebrated strains including Europe's best.

Excellent for pot culture . . . and . . . just the thing for bedding out in that shady spot in the garden next summer.
